

CONFERENCE ON MEASURE HELD

Public Not Taken Into Congress' Confidence As To The Result Of The Understanding.

THE CHIEF POINTS ARE AGREED ON

Even The Democratic Members Are To Be Taken Into The Conference Before The Public Is Told The Result.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, D. C., May 27.—The republican members' conference on the currency question reached an agreement today. It was stated the exact terms would not be made public until the proposed bill is submitted to the general conference, including the democratic members.

Conference Concluded.

The conference on the currency bill was concluded today and the report submitted to the house, which immediately began its consideration.

Main Points of Compromise.

The following are the main points of the understanding that had been reached: The reserve provisions in the Freedman bill, calling for a retention of 25 per cent. in central reserve cities and 15 per cent. in other reserve cities, is reduced to a straight ten per cent. reserve without reference to classification of cities.

A higher rating is given to state and municipal bonds than to other securities upon which an emergency currency may be taken out by banks. That is to say, state and municipal bonds will be valued at not to exceed 90 per cent. of their market value, and all other bonds at not to exceed 70 per cent. of their market value, both with or without regard to whether they are offered as security for additional circulation under the national clearing house plan or under the individual bank bond security plan.

The amount of circulation loanable upon a commercial paper basis is limited to 40 per cent. of the capital of the applicant bank, instead of 100 per cent. as provided in the Freedman bill. The redemption fund requirement of five per cent. under the present law is increased to ten per cent. for all emergency currency taken out.

The total amount of emergency currency loanable is confined within a maximum of $500,000,000 as provided by the Aldrich bill.

A time limit of three years is placed upon the life of the bill.

Payne and Williams Clash.

The two floor leaders of the house again occupied the center of the stage Tuesday, and performed their usual feat of charging each other with responsibility for the conditions at present existing in that body. In doing so, they followed an order presented by Mr. Payne of New York, granting five days' leave after adjournment in which to print in the congressional record the remarks that might have been but were not made on the floor. He took occasion to arraign the Democrats for their filibuster and said that the Republicans had no apology to make for their course. Mr. Williams accused the majority of doing nothing at the present session and opposed the order because it gave members no opportunity to reply to statements which, he felt in advance, would call for answer. The order was adopted.

Following this discussion business proceeded at a rapid gait. The conference report on the military academy appropriation bill was agreed to, and numerous bills were passed. The senate did practically nothing.

FELL ONE HUNDRED FEET; UNINJURED

Blown from Chimney, John Jena Falls on Pile of Waste Paper and Escapes Unhurt.

Neenah, Wis., May 27.—To fall nearly one hundred feet and never suffer a broken bone nor hardly a bruise was the feat performed by John Jena here yesterday. Jena was employed on a scaffolding built up around a high chimney on the Neenah Paper company's mill when a wind storm came up and tore away some of the support. Jena was hurled from the scaffolding in mid air. He landed on a big pile of waste paper, which effectively broke his fall and he escaped injury, though it took some time before he could be dug out of the paper into which he had fallen with such force.

C., May 27.—The body of General Clinton, one of the heroes of the American Revolution, first Governor of the State of New York and twice Vice President of the United States, which was exhumed last week after resting nearly a century in the Congressional cemetery of Christ church parish, was honored today with a notable military and civic escort today on its departure from this city for New York. The body will be reburied next Saturday in Kingston, N. Y., Governor Clinton's native town, and where he took the oath of office as first Governor of the state in 1777.

The marine band headed the procession as the casket was borne through the streets to the railway station today. A squadron of cavalry, two batteries of field artillery, a large detachment of marines and a number of civic societies made up the procession. Major-General J. Franklin Bell, chief of staff, acted as grand marshal. Brigadier-General F. E. Holt commanded the marine corps and Henry H. P. MacFarland, president of the District commissioners, was in charge of the civilian division. The remains are to reach Jersey City tonight and tomorrow morning they will be transferred to the battery in the revenue cutter Mohawk, and will lie in state in New York City for twenty-four hours, before being taken to Kingston for reburial.

George Clinton, whose memory is being thus honored, died April 20, 1812. He was born in Orange county, N. Y., July 26, 1739. He was a delegate to the second Continental Congress and was elected Governor of New York in April, 1777. LEGAL LORE VS. COMMON SENSE

BATTLED FOR SUPREMACY AGAIN AT COUNCIL MEETING.

BROWN PAID NOT IN FULL

Steam-roller Purchased—Sutherland and Tallman Sidewalk Duck-Pond Attacked—Contract Let For Bridge Sidewalk.

Though Chief of Police George Appleby and Officer John Brown received no mention in the May salary list reported by the finance committee at the common council last evening, the budget contained an item of $38 for Officer Sam Brown for services from April 17 to June 1. Ald. Dulla took exception to the item on the ground that Brown had been reappointed by Chief of Police Appleby and hence, in the opinion of the council, the appointment was not legal. In response to an inquiry for an opinion from Ald. O'Hara, City Attorney Macfield said that pending the determination of the John Brown vs. Appleby case it would be impossible for anyone to decide whether or not any salary could be legally voted to Patrolman Sam Brown. If the court should hold that Appleby was not the head of the police department, then the appointment of Sam Brown would have to be held illegal and he would not be entitled to any pay, and vice versa. The following colloquy between some of the aldermen and the city attorney ensued:

Ald. Carlo: "What constitutes a de facto officer?"
City Attorney: "An officer in possession of an office that is actually in existence."

Ald. Carlo: "Isn't George Appleby in possession of an office that is in existence?"

City Attorney: "Not if the court decides that the right to elect a city marshal still remains with the council."

Ald. Carlo: "Haven't we had a decision after decision that the office of chief of police and city marshal are one and the same?"

City Attorney: "The decisions do not necessarily apply to this case."

Ald. Brown: "Didn't you advise this council that it could with safety elect a city marshal? Now, I understand, you hold the other way."

City Attorney: "The record will show that I told you that you had the legal right if you saw fit to exercise it, but that as to whether or not it would hold in court was another matter."

Ald. Brown: "Well, according to that we might have elected delegates to the republican national convention in Chicago. Why not deem all law unconstitutional until it has been passed upon by the supreme court?"

Ald. Dulla: "As I understand it this fire and police commission in striking out a few words in our grand civil service law or whatever you call it—I wouldn't call it anything at all—clears the way for Sam Brown and instructs George Appleby to reappoint him and the re-appointment would be confirmed."

Ald. O'Hara: "I move to amend the motion to adopt the finance committee's report by striking out the item relating to Sam Brown's salary."

Ald. Carlo: "As I understand it, George Appleby was appointed to the same office which William Appleby had held."

City Attorney: "That's a hard question to answer, Mr. Carlo. The circuit court will soon be pondering over it."

Ald. Carlo: "Well, you won't say anything about the law—its some right he got the same office as a de facto officer, and if he is such he's every bit as binding on this council."

City Attorney: "He first has to be in possession."

Ald. Carlo: "Don't quibble over and over around names. Stick to one name. He's holding the office and performing the duties of the head of the police department. You'll find that he is a de facto officer."

City Attorney: "You'll find that he is not a de facto officer."

Ald. Carlo: "Do you claim that if he makes an arrest he's liable?"

City Attorney: "No—you could make an arrest."

Ald. Carlo: "Stick to the subject. If he can make an arrest as chief of police he is the de facto officer holding the position."

City Attorney: "I can show you a decision that there is no such thing as a de facto officer in a case of this kind. In a case before the U. S. supreme court it was held that where there is no office there can be no de facto officer, and where the office does not legally exist, the performance of the duties of the said imaginary office has no validity."

Ald. Carlo: "That doesn't apply here."

City Attorney: "Suppose the state supreme court holds that it does."

Mayor Hodges: "Will the city of Janesville be liable for his salary if the supreme court holds against Appleby?"

City Attorney: "If the supreme court decides against Appleby then this council can pay neither Appleby nor Sam Brown."

At this juncture a vote was taken on the O'Hara amendment to strike out the Sam Brown item from the report. The amendment was lost by a vote of 5 to 1. Aldermen Dulla, O'Hara, Rothfeld, and Richardson lining up on the affirmative side and Aldermen Brown, Buchholz, Carlo, Sheridan, and Watt, supporting the negative.

The original motion to adopt the report with Sam Brown's salary included was then passed by a vote of 6 to 5. Aldermen Dulla, O'Hara, and Buchholz dissenting.

Subsequently Ald. Watt introduced an order directing the clerk to draw on the treasurer for the sum of $92, payable from the general fund to Officer Sam Brown for services as patrolman from March 1 to April 17.

"We're in this business now and it seems to me we might as well clear it all up and pay the man for his work," said the sponsor of the proposed measure.

Ald. Buchholz: "Didn't the city attorney file an opinion on this matter, holding it to be illegal?" The opinion to the effect that Sam Brown's original appointment was in violation of the civil service laws and illegal and that the authorities had no right to pay him, was then read. Ald. Watt's order was lost, only himself and Ald. Brown voting in the affirmative.

On motion of Chairman Dulla of the finance committee, the city attorney's settlement of the Frank W. Adam and Farmer Christian grading damage cases on a basis of $250 and the taxable costs was approved. The report of the same officer on the amount expended in witness fees was also adopted.

Mayor Hodges was authorized by a resolution to borrow $3,000 and place the same to the credit of the fire and water fund.

Highway Improvements.
Further time was granted the highway committee for the consideration of a petition from several property holders asking that Jackson street from Milwaukee avenue to S. Third street be paved with brick.

Chairman Buchholz of the fire and water committee reported that he and his associates had viewed the premises and had agreed that the petition from residents on Glen street calling for the extension of the water mains from Milton ave. easterly 300 ft. should be granted. A resolution providing for this extension and stipulating that fire hydrants should be located by the Chief Engineer was passed.

The highway committee was granted further time for the consideration of the report of the street assessment committee providing for the improvement of Carlington and Wheeler streets and Garfield avenue with a cement curbing and gutters, and for the petition asking that section of Court street lying between Garfield and Luger avenues, city water only sufficiently to lay the city water mains, using no material other than that taken from the said thoroughfare for filling. A communication from the Illinois Good Roads Co., per C. T. Hartlett, gen. mgr., making overtures for a contract to treat macadam roads for a single treatment being guaranteed to lay the dust and preserve the road surface for a season, was unanimously laid on the table.

Buchholz suggested and moved that the highway committee make a comprehensive inspection of all of the thoroughfares within the corporate limits and report to the council as soon as possible a list of those which were in need of improvement. Ald. Sheridan thought the committee had enough work on its hands at the present time and as there was no money in hand of the ward funds, did not believe it advisable to go hunting for trouble. On the latter's motion, Ald. Buchholz's plan was laid on the table.

Further time was granted the highway committee for the consideration of City Engineer Kerck's atlas map and plans for the re-numbering of the city.

Bonds of G. A. Crossman, second hand dealer, and Claude E. Snyder who is to undertake the improvement of Wheeler and Carlington streets and Garfield avenue, were found in due form and accepted.

Owners of property on the east side of Chatham street, from Elizabeth street to Ryland avenue, were given permission to build walks four feet wide. The city clerk was instructed to renew the insurance on the crusher plant.

An invitation from S. C. Cobb, chairman of the committee, bidding the Mayor, aldermen, and other city officers to attend the Memorial Day exercises to be held under G. A. R. auspices at the rink Saturday afternoon, was accepted.

STOCK COMPANY IS TO CLOSE THE YEAR

Sherman-Brown Stock Company of Milwaukee Arrive from Cream City This Morning.

By securing the Sherman-Brown Stock company of Milwaukee as the closing attraction of his season of 1907 and 1908, Manager Myers of the Myers theater has kept one of the best of his bookings for the closing evening. Milwaukee theatrical critics pay high tribute to the company as a whole and individually and claim that the ensemble of actors and actresses is one of the best that has ever been brought together in that city. Their production this evening has been made famous by Milano Modern Pinks and in "Leah Kleschna" the company is said to be at its best. It took a special car to transport the company. The curtain rose up at eight-thirty instead of eight and this custom will be followed until the cold weather begins in the fall. There are still many good seats remaining unsold, but Manager Myers states the sale has been large.

Weather Conditions
FOR THE PAST WEEK

Government Report on the Weather for the Past Seven Days Officially Given.

The prevailing weather conditions for the week ending May 26th varied greatly in the different portions of the state. In the western and the central sections the weather was warm and cloudy, with heavy rains and severe thunderstorms on several days, while along the shore of the Great Lakes the temperatures were comparatively low and the rainfall was mostly light in the southeastern counties. The week opened with the temperature rising rapidly and the weather was unseasonably warm on the 18th, 19th and 20th, with maximum temperatures each day of 80 degrees or above in the interior counties. There were frequent showers and thunderstorms during this time over the western half of the state, the storms on the 21st being especially severe. The high winds blew down many sheds and fences, several buildings were struck by lightning and burned, and the heavy rains flooded the lowlands and left the upland soil too wet to work. The showers continued during the latter half of the week in the western sections, but the storms were less severe and the temperature was considerably lower. In the eastern portion of the state the general weather conditions were more favorable. Although there was considerable cloudy and threatening weather, the rainfall was moderate and the temperature was mild.

KAYSER GLOVES

THE POWER OF STEAM.

Many May See It Takes Genius to Realize.

When James Watt saw the steam raising the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."

There was. Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandridge, falling hair, and consequent baldness, and has unearthed a tiny germ which eats the life from the roots of human hair.

Newborn's Hairicide destroys this germ and consequently restores the hair to its natural state.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Hairicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

EVELYN WITHDRAWS SUIT

DOESN'T WANT MARRIAGE TO HARRY THAW ANNULLED.

Her Attorney Says the Action Was Brought Under Pressure from Husband's Relatives.

New York, May 27.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, through her counsel, Tuesday withdrew the suit which she instituted some time ago for the annulment of her marriage to Harry K. Thaw. The motion for withdrawal was sanctioned by Referee Deyo, who had been appointed by the court to take testimony in the proceeding, and the case was declared discontinued without costs to either party to the suit.

Immediately following the dismissal of the action Daniel O'Reilly, personal attorney for Mrs. Thaw, issued a statement in which he declared that Mrs. Thaw had been an unwilling party to the proceedings from the first. It was only because of pressure on the part of her husband's relatives that she had any part in such a proceeding, said Mr. O'Reilly, and that she withdrew the action because she believes her husband's present position demands her loyalty.

"There has been much misrepresentation as to Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's action in first bringing an application for an annulment and then subsequently discontinuing the same," said the statement. "Mrs. Thaw reluctantly made such an application in response to pressure brought by relatives of her husband; she withdrew from the action at this time because she believes her husband's present situation demands from her a loyalty to his interest and that it would not serve any good purpose to prove, at a time when he is attempting to gain his liberty, that he was insane when he married her. Especially is this true in the light of the unfortunate conclusion of the last proceedings."

Mr. O'Reilly declined to give the name of the relative who had brought pressure to bear upon her to institute the proceedings.

Mr. O'Reilly was quoted Tuesday as saying there had been no reconciliation between Harry K. Thaw and his wife, and that Mrs. Evelyn Thaw wanted none. He added that Evelyn thought she had a right to some financial recompense for the sacrifice she had made in Thaw's behalf.

May 27.—Rev. T. W. North has been invited to speak both morning and evening in the Cargill Methodist church in Janesville next Sunday. Rev. B. D. Fay will fill his place in the Methodist pulpit here.

DETROIT GONE CRAZY OVER ROLLER SKATES

George Brownell Writes from the Michigan City of the General Mix-up.

According to George Brownell, a former resident of Janesville now making his home in Detroit, that city has gone crazy over roller-skating. He writes:

"The roller-skating craze has struck Detroit with all of the fervor that characterized the long-forgotten fad for bicycle-riding. Children skate to and from school during the day, sweat down the evening, frighten throngs during the night, and constitute a danger for gray hairs among the automobile-driving fraternity. A wholesale hardware dealer informed me a few days ago that during the latter part of April there were several days in which not a single pair of skates could be obtained in the city at any price.

"Not only children, but young men and women and their fathers and mothers may be seen gliding over the asphalt upon the whirling wheels. Impromptu skating parties are met with upon side streets in which the entire neighborhood seems to be involved. One man, living out several miles, is said to skate down to work every morning. I have not seen him perform the feat, but it is safe to predict that his enthusiasm, if the story is true, will be short-lived. What may be a pleasant half-hour's diversion in front of one's home is bound to become tiresome labor when regularly repeated as a means of locomotion.

"Detroit has an institution called the Eastern Market in which truck-growers and produce-men gather each morning to barter their wares. It is two squares in length and is partly covered by a metal roof in the form of two Maltese crosses joined together. The pavement is constructed entirely of concrete and asphalt and is almost perfectly adapted for roller-skating purposes.

"The market is located almost in the center of the foreign residence portion of the city. Every night it is the gathering place of an army of youthful skaters the like of which has not been seen since Daniel, Poles, Hungarians, Italians, Greeks, Armenians, Jews, Russians and Negroes are a few of the races and nationalities represented. A few weeks ago the inevitable occurred. Over three hundred children with their parents became involved in a free-for-all fight that required the vigorous intervention of a squad of police before order could be restored. A reporter who was sent out to get the 'story' told me that between paroxysms of laughter the policemen were hardly able to tell what had happened. They seemed to think that such a mix-up of nationalities was funny enough when the participants were upon secure footing. Conducted by such a mob mounted upon rollers it constituted a scene which got past their powers of description. Every blow struck knocked down both victim and assailant. Parents who rushed in were, in the darkness, as liable to rescue an enemy as one of their own offspring. Toward the last it was a 'battle-royal' in which everyone struck, hit and clawed according to the teaching of his nativity and without regard to friend or foe.

"With the coming of hot weather and other opportunities for diversion it is probable that the skating fever will subside as rapidly as it arose. Meanwhile that portion of the public which elects to walk or ride in vehicles will be compelled to keep good watch for collisions that may injure the one or be a source of heavy damages to the other."

JURY RETURNS WITH A MEAGRE VERDICT

Fred Boelke Secures Twenty Dollars for Injury Done His Horse by Lane's Automobile.

It took seven hours for the jury to digest the result of the three-day trial in the suit arising over an alleged injury sustained by a horse of Fred Boelke in a collision with an automobile driven by Wilson Lane. As a result of their mature deliberation, Mr. Boelke will receive twenty dollars for his horse's injuries and the cost of the case will have to be paid out of that sum as well as attorney's fees. It was a bit of costly litigation for both plaintiff and defendant and while the jury found that the horse was injured they did not believe it hurt to the extent of the $200 claimed. Had the verdict been for fifty dollars damages it would have carried with it the costs of the case, which will total in the neighborhood of a hundred dollars, exclusive of attorney's fees.

Oscar Callison, eleven year old son of J. J. Callison who is in charge of the poor house at the county farm, was taken ill with scarlet fever yesterday while attending the seventh grade of the Second Ward school. He was removed to the detention hospital of the county farm and is reported to be getting along nicely today. Health Officer G. C. Wanda thoroughly fumigated the room and the boy's pupils have been to some degree exposed. It is hoped that there will be no spread of the malady.

Carl Merrill has completely recovered from his recent illness with diphtheria and the quarantine was today lifted from the home of Mrs. Mary Merrill at 55 S. Third street. There are now within the corporate limits of the city, just two cases of contagious disease under the quarantine. One is a case of diphtheria at the home of Edward O'Donnell, 210 Terrace street, and the other is a case of scarlet fever, the little daughter of Alderman G. W. Richardson, at No. 7 Washington street.

Some of the parties who have been under quarantine and who have entirely recovered have naturally been clamoring for release and there have been instances where the physicians, in attending, knowing well enough the nature of the necessary precautions required by law, have made themselves popular at the expense of the health officer by assuring the convalescents that there was no need for further maintenance of the safeguards and that a telephone message to official headquarters would secure their prompt release. This sort of procedure has endangered unreasonably anger at the officer when he refused to lay himself liable by disregarding laws which even stipulate the minimum number of days during which the patients shall be isolated.

As compared with other cities, Janesville has long been remarkably free from epidemics. At Charles City, Ia., some weeks ago a Congregational minister gave a stag supper to sixty of the male members of his congregation. Thirty of the number have been afflicted with typhoid fever, contracted, so it has since been discovered, from ice cream served at the feast. Two have died—one of them a brother of Mr. Walters who is at present in Janesville on business connected with Dakota lands—and eight are not expected to live. The typhoid germ cannot be frozen out but this city has escaped its visitations for many months.

EXTEND THE TIME TO SERVE PAPERS

Attorneys in Case of State of Wisconsin vs. Appleby Agree to Extension.

Attorney John Cunningham, who appears for John Brown in the case of the State of Wisconsin on the relation of John Brown vs. George M. Appleby, and William G. Wheeler, who has been retained by the defendant in the case, have agreed to extend the time allowed for the defendant to serve his papers in answer to the complaint which has been filed by the plaintiff.

The complaint was served by Sheriff Fisher upon Chief of Police Appleby upon the evening of the sixth of this month. Unless the attorneys agree to a longer time, the answer or demurrer would have to be filed within twenty days, excluding the day of service of the complaint and including the day of service of the answer or demurrer. This would bring the last day upon which an answer could be made upon the 27th, which is today. Both attorneys have agreed to lengthen the time and the defendant's answer will be served within the near future.

FUTURE ORATORS TO SPELLBIND CROWDS

Janesville Boys Who Go to Beloit Next Year Can Talk on Political Matters.

According to word received from Beloit today a new course to be instituted at Beloit college next fall which promises to turn loose a lot of ambitious spellbinders upon the community during the fall campaign. It is a course in political speaking and one of the requirements will be that the members of the class deliver two or three addresses at political rallies in different parts of the county during the fall campaign. At the election of officers of the Chaphin Hall association of the college yesterday two Janesville boys were named as officers for the coming year. Russell Zehninger and George MacGoebing the two honored.

M'KINLEY'S GUARD VISITING FRIENDS

W. H. Murphy of Chicago Who Protected President McKinley on His Chicago Visits in Janesville.

W. H. Murphy, of the W. H. Murphy Company, an extract concern located in Chicago, paid Janesville a visit today and called on several old-time friends. Mr. Murphy was connected with the Chicago police department for eighteen years, becoming an associate with it at the same time that present Chief of the Secret Service, William J. Hall. On all of President McKinley's visits to Chicago Mr. Murphy was his personal bodyguard. He remembered the late president very closely and dressed in the same manner as the president, the two often being mistaken for each other by persons not aware of Murphy's presence. Mr. Murphy retired from the department several years ago and is now in business for himself.

SPECIAL MEETING TO RECTIFY ERROR

City Fathers Will Have to Reconsider the Question of Salary List—Clark Could Not Draw Orders Today.

Since the council meeting last evening it has been discovered that the order adopting the salary list which was declared carried by a vote of 5 to 4, was in reality lost, the charter requiring six affirmative votes for the passage of any financial measure. Mayor Heddes has therefore called a special meeting for tomorrow evening to reconsider the measure. Alderman Clark was absent from last night's session. Otherwise the error would probably not have been made.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, May 27, 1868.—The weather—a most refreshing rain visited this section, last night. Atmosphere delightful today. Thermometer indicates 76 degrees.

Great Pacing Race.—A great pacing race will come off in the Janesville driving park next Saturday, the 30th, between Black Sky and the Ford on the line horse for a wager of $500 on a side. It will be remembered that Black Sky made one lap in 2:28 in bad weather and will go faster now.

Capital Acad.—It will be remembered that a few weeks since a number of prisoners broke jail hereby tunneling from the well in the jail building to the outer wall. But notwithstanding they disappeared suddenly, and as it seemed effectually, the sheriff has been on their track, and last evening had the pleasure of turning the key on one of the escapees named John L. Alms Charles Baldwin, who was incarcerated for breaking into the house of Mr. Antleed.

What Should Be Done.—Those who are observant of the trees in the park know how they suffer in a dry time.

This arises partly from the character of the soil and partly from the fact that but very few of them have any mulching around the roots. It seems to us that in so far as this prevention will preserve the trees, it should be taken. The work and expense attending a proper mulching would be light, and if it will have the effect to save the trees, should not be neglected. After trees have got a good start of two or three years, it is a great pity that they should die for the want of a little timely care.

Impeachment Trial.—The impeachment trial ended yesterday by the adjournment of the Court sine die by a vote of 36 yeas, to 16 nays. A vote has been taken on the second, third and eleventh articles of impeachment presented by the managers, resulting in each case in 35 for conviction to 19 for acquittal. So Andrew Johnson goes free by the decision of one vote.

Yesterday Mr. Stanton notified the president that as the Senate had failed in its resolution of February 12th, declaring that the president has no power to remove the Secretary of War, he had relinquished the War department to the next office and had retired.

When Gulliver awakened he attempted to rise, but could not stir, for while he had been sleeping on his back the Lilliputians had fastened him securely to the ground.—"Gulliver's Travels," by Swift.

MONROE INTENDS TO ENTERTAIN FIREMEN

Wants the 1908 Tournament of the Wisconsin Association if It Can Secure It.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Monroe, Wis., May 27.—The Monroe fire department wants to entertain the Wisconsin Volunteer Firemen's association on the occasion of the 1908 tournament and is making an effort to interest businessmen and citizens. If the response assures the firemen that necessary financial assistance will not be lacking and that the firemen during their stay in the city the invitation will be extended to the coming tournament at Lake Mills, Monroe will be represented by delegates and a running team.
The Grand Central hotel at Mont-cello has been leased to G. F. Butler, field, who has been conducting the Portland house at Oregon. The proprietors of the Monticello house died within a short time of each other within the past three months.

Fifteen members of the Green County Medical society attended the quarterly meeting held here yesterday. A banquet was served at the Laidlaw at 2 o'clock. Dr. J. L. Fleck of Brookfield presided as toastmaster. Drs. Penner and Nuzum of Janesville and Dr. Nye of Deloit were in attendance. Miss Mabel Sarselson, aged 19, youngest daughter of George Sarselson, who died at Blanchardville yesterday, she had been ill four months and three months ago underwent an operation for tuberculosis of the bowels at Freeport.

Chas. Ames, Pearl Layton and Wm. Patches were charged with procuring liquor for prohibited persons in the police court here yesterday. They pleaded not guilty and hearing was set for Monday. Bail was fixed at $50 and being unable to furnish it they were committed to jail.

The operators of the Monroe Telephone company are having a picnic at Thren's grove today.
Mrs. Amelia Churchill is visiting her daughter at Madison.
Miss Lottie Bell was the guest of Mrs. J. H. Durd and returned to Janesville yesterday.

Sweeping Out the Cob-webs.

Sweeping the cob-webs out of the brain is not an easy job for the man who eats anything he likes. Clear thinking and clean living go with a simple diet that does not clog the system or tax the digestive machinery. Every particle of Shredded Wheat is easily and quickly digested by the most delicate stomach. Try it for breakfast for a week and notice the results.

For breakfast heat the Biscuit in oven, pour milk over it (hot milk in winter) and a little cream. If you like the Biscuit for breakfast you will like toasted TRISCUIT (the Shredded Wheat wafer) for luncheon or any meal with butter, cheese or marmalade. At your grocers.

RICH RED BLOOD

NATURE'S SAFE-GUARD AGAINST DISEASE

Pure, rich blood and a free circulation is the surest protection against the diseases and disorders which are constantly attacking our physical systems. The healthy circulation of the blood prevents the entrance of disease germs, and filters out of the system everything that is not necessary or beneficial to the growth and development of the body; all life's forces are kept up by it, and every organ, nerve, tissue and bone is dependent on the blood for its nourishment and strength.

Healthy blood is filled with millions of little red corpuscles. These minute particles furnish its rich, red color, and are the carriers of nutriment and health to the different parts of the body; in other words the very life and vitalizing essence of the circulation. The destruction of these corpuscles by disease germs weakens and pollutes the blood, and anaemia, with its attendant evils of pale, chalky complexions, weak, run-down systems and malarial conditions, or perhaps some more definitely marked disorder, is the result.

Frequently the blood becomes infected with acrid, fiery humors, and Eczema, Acne, Tetter, or some other skin disease or affection makes its appearance, and is kept up with its itching and disfiguring symptoms. An excess of uric acid in the circulation causes a fermentation of the blood, and Rheumatism, with its pains and aches, is established in the system, there to remain, unless the poison is driven from the blood.

Old Sores and Ulcers are likewise dependent on bad blood. These places are kept open and in a state of irritation by the drainage of pollution which the blood is continually discharging into them. In fact there are few ailments which cannot be traced to impure or diseased blood, and our only safeguard is to keep the circulation in strong, healthy condition. In all blood troubles S. S. S. has proven itself a perfect remedy, and is universally recognized as the greatest of all blood purifiers. It goes down into the circulation, and removes all poisons, humors and taints, and makes this life-stream pure and health-sustaining. It purifies and strengthens weak, deteriorated blood, supplies it with the healthful properties it needs, and establishes the foundation for good health. As a tonic S. S. S. has no equal, and will be found especially adapted to weak, run-down systems.

One of the greatest points in favor of S. S. S., is that it does not contain a particle of mineral, but is made entirely of the extracts and juices of harmless, healing, cleansing roots and herbs. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other blood troubles, are permanently cured by S. S. S., and so thorough is its work that no trace of the disease is left for future outbreaks. S. S. S. is for sale at all drug stores. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired will be sent free to all who write.

Chapter Three

It seemed somehow impossible, not going to be back there all my days." So wrote Sophy at a later date in regard to her life at Morpington hall. To many of us in our youth it has seemed impossible that we should pass all our days in the humdrum occupations and the mediocre positions in which we have in fact spent them. Young ambitious are chronicle only when they have been fulfilled—unless where a born autobiographer makes fame out of his failures. But Sophy had a double portion of original restlessness. This much the records of Morpington years, scanty as they are, render plain.

The immediate result of this disposition of hers was unhappy, and it is not hard to sympathize with the feelings of the Brownlows. Their benevolence was ample, but it was not unconditional. Their benefits, which were very great, appeared to them exhaustive, not only above what Sophy might expect, but also beyond what she could imagine. They had picked her up from the roadside and set her on the way to that sort of kingdom with the prospect of which Basil Williamson had tried to console her. The squire was an estimable man, but one of small mind. He moved among the little—the contented lord of a pin point of the earth. Mrs. Brownlow was a profoundly pious woman, to whom content was a high duty, to be won by the performance of other duties. If the squire detected in the girl signs of ingratitude to himself his wife laid equal blame on a rebellion against heaven. Sophy knew—if not then, yet on looking back—what they felt. Her references to them are charged with a remorse whose playful expression, obstinately touched with scorn as it is, does not hide its sincerity. She soon perceived, anyhow, that she was getting a bad character. She, the cook in posse, was at open war with Mrs. Smilker, the cook in esse, though, to be sure, Smilker might have done something to reconcile her to Grouch!

Mrs. Brownlow naturally ranged herself on the side of constituted authority, of the superior rank in the domestic hierarchy. Moreover, it is likely that Mrs. Smilker was right in nine cases out of ten, at all events. Sophy recognized that probability in after life. None the less, she allows herself more than once to speak of "that beast of a Smilker."

For the greater part of this time she had no friends outside the hall to turn to. Julia Robins was pursuing her training in acting in London and, later, her profession in the country. Basil Williamson, who amused her, was at Cambridge and afterward at his hospital. A glimpse of him she may have caught now and then, but they had no further talk. Very probably he sought no opportunity. Sophy had passed from the infant's school to the scullery. She had grown from a child into a big girl. If prudent Basil kept these transformations in view, none can blame him—he was the son of the rector of the parish—so when bidden to the hall he did not hesitate to peel and peeled, but reeked no more of the hand that peeled them. In the main the child was no doubt a solitary creature.

So much is what scientific men and historians call "reconstruction"—a hazardous process, at least when you are dealing with human beings. It has been kept within the strict limits of legitimate inference and accordingly yields meager results. The return of Julia Robins enables us to put many more of the stones—or bones, or whatever they may be called—in their appropriate places.

It is the summer of 1865, and Julia is very gorgeous. Three years had passed over her head. Her training had been completed a twelvemonth before, and she had been on her first tour. She had come home to rest and to look out for a new engagement. She wore a blue hat with a white feather, a blue skirt and a red Garibaldi shirt. Her fair hair was dressed in the latest fashion. The sensation she made in Morpington needs no record. But her head was not turned. Nobody was ever less of a snob than Julia Robins, no friendship ever more independent of the ups and downs of life, on one side or the other, than that which united her and Sophy Grouch. She opened communications with the hall scullery immediately, and "Sophy" was as much of a darling as ever in her warm-hearted verdict.

The hall was not accessible to Julia nor Woodbine lodge to Mrs. Brownlow's little cook girl. But the squire's coachman had been at the station when Julia's train came in. Her arrival would be known in the hall kitchen if not upstairs. On the morrow she went into the avenue of old elms about 12 o'clock, conjecturing that her friend might have a few free moments about that hour—an oasis between the labors of the morning and the claims of luncheon. Standing there under the trees in all her glory—not very expensive luxury no doubt, yet fresh and indisputably gay—she called her old mocking challenge: "Sophy Grouch! Sophy Grouch!"

Sophy was watching. Her head rose from the other side of the ditch. She was down in a moment, up again and in her friend's arms. "It's like a puff of fresh air," she whispered as she kissed her, and then, drawing away, looked her over. Sophy was tall beyond her years, and her head was nearly on a level with Julia's. She was in her short print gown, with her kitchen apron on, her sleeves rolled up, her face red from the fire, her hands, too, no doubt red from washing vegetables and dishes. "She looked like Cinderella in the first act of a pantomime," is Miss Robins' professional comment, colored perhaps also by subsequent events.

"You're beautiful!" cried Sophy. "Oh, that shirt! I love red!" And so on for some time no doubt. "Tell me about it. Tell me everything about it," she urged. "It's the next best thing, you know."

Miss Robins recounted her adventures. They would not seem very dazzling at this distance. Sophy heard them with ardent eyes. They availed to color the mark on her cheek to a rosy tint. "That's being alive," she said, with a deep drawn sigh.

Julia patted her hand consolingly. "But 'I'm twenty!' she reminded her friend. "Think how young you are!"

"Young or old's much the same in the kitchen," Sophy grumbled. Linking arms, they walked up the avenue and came near to the gates. Julia felt a sudden pressure on her arm.

"Look!" whispered Sophy, her eyes lighting up again in interest. A young man rode up the approach to the hall lodge. His mare was a beauty. He sat her well. He was perfectly dressed for the exercise. His features were clear cut and handsome. There was as the air of breeding about him as about the splendid Newfoundland dog which ran behind him. Julia looked at him with hidden. "It's handsome," she said. "Why?" she laughed low—"I believe I know who it is—I think I've seen him somewhere."

"Have you?" Sophy's question was breathless.

"Yes, I know! When we were at York! He was one of the officers there. He was in a box. Sophy, it's the Earl of Dunstanbury!"

Sophy did not speak. She looked. The young man—he could be hardly more than twenty—came on. Sophy suddenly hid behind her friend ("To save my pride, not her own," generous Julia explained; Sophy herself advances no such excuse, but she could see. She saw the rider's eye rest on Julia. Did it rest in recognition? It almost seemed so, yet there was doubt. Julia blushed, but she forbore from smiling or from seeking to raise his memory. Yet she was proud if he remembered her face from across the footlights. The young man, too, being but a young man, blushed a little as he gave the pretty girl by the gate such a glance as discreetly told her that he was of the same mind as herself about her looks. These silent interchanges of opinion on such matters are pleasant diversions as one plays the highway.

He was gone. Julia sighed in satisfaction. Sophy spoke to stern realities. "Graceless," she cried, "he must have come to lunch! They'll want a salad! You'll be home tomorrow—do?" And she was off up the drive and around to her own regions at the back of the house.

"I believe his lordship did remember my face," thought Julia as she wandered back to Woodbine cottage.

But Sophy washed lettuce in her scullery, which, save for its base purposes, was a pleasant, airy apartment, looking out on a path that ran between yew hedges and led around from the lawn to the office of the house. Diligently she washed, as Mrs. Smilker had taught her, whether rightly or not is nothing to the purpose here, but how many miles away was her mind? So far away from lettuce that it seemed in no way strange to look up and see Lord Dunstanbury and his dog on the path outside the window at which she had been performing her task. He began hastily:

"Oh, I say, I've been seeing my mare get her feed, and—do you think you could be so good as to find a bone and some water for Lorenzo?"

"Lorenzo?" she said.

"My dog, you know." He pointed to the handsome beast, which wagged an expectant tail.

"Why do you call him that?" Dunstanbury smiled. "Because he's magnificent. I dare say you never heard of Lorenzo the Magnificent?"

"No. Who was he?"

"A duke—Duke of Florence, in Italy." He had begun to watch her face and seemed not impatient for the bone.

"Florence? Italy?" The lettuce dropped from her hands. She wiped her hands slowly on her apron.

"Do you think you could get me one?" "Yes; I'll get it."

She went to the back of the room and chose a bone.

"Will this do?" she asked, holding it out through the window.

"Two much meat."

"Oh!" She went and got another.

"This one all right?"

"Capital! Do you mind if I stay and see him eat it?"

"No."

"Here, Lorenzo! And thank the lady!"

Lorenzo directed three sharp barks at Sophy and fell to. Sophy, filled, and

"Is she—or a great friend of yours?"

honest, hasn't he? Is she—or a great friend of yours?"

His manner was perhaps a little at fault. The slightest note of chaff had crept into it, and the slightest was enough to put Sophy's quills up.

"Why not?" she asked.

"Why not? Every reason why she should be," he answered with his lips. His eyes answered more, but he refrained his tongue. He was scrupulously a gentleman, more so perhaps than, had sex and places been reversed, Sophy herself would have been. But his eyes told her. "Only," he went on, "if so, why did you blurt?"

That bit of chaff did not anger Sophy, but it went home to a different purpose, far deeper, far truer home than the young man had meant. Not the mark, only reddened; even the cheeks flushed. She said no word. With a fling out of her arms—a gesture strangely, prophetically foreign as it seemed to him in after days—she exhibited herself—the print frock, the soiled apron, the bare arms, red hands, the ugly knot of her hair, the scrap of cap she wore. For a moment her lips quivered, while the mark—the red star of future days and future fame—grew redder still.

The only sound was of Lorenzo's warring the last tough scrap of bone. The last, gentleman as he was, was good flesh and blood, and the blood was moving. He felt a little lightness in his throat. He was now to it. Now, too, was Sophy Grouch to what his eyes said to her, but she took it with head erect and a glance steadily leveled at his.

"Yes," he said, "but I shouldn't have looked at any of that, and I shouldn't have looked at her, either."

(Brightly the mark glowed; subtly the eyes glowed. There was silence again.)

Almost a start marked Dunstanbury's awakening. "Come, Lorenzo," he cried. He raised his hat and turned away, followed by his dog, Lorenzo the Magnificent.

Sophy took up her lettuce and carried them into the kitchen.

"There you are at last! And what's put you in a temper now?" asked Mrs. Smilker. She had learned the signs of the mark.

Sophy smiled. "It's not temper this time, Mrs. Smilker. I—I'm very happy today," she said. "Oh, I do hope the salad will be good!"

For he who was to eat of the salad—had he not forgotten print frock and soiled apron, bare arms, red hands, ugly knot and execrable cap? He would not have looked at them—no, not at beautiful, many-thumbed Julia Robins in her pride. He had forgotten all these to look at the staid cheek and the eyes of subtle glove. She had glanced in the mirror of love and slipped from the cup of power.

Such was her first meeting with Lord Dunstanbury. If it were ever forgotten, it was not Dunstanbury who forgot.

The day had wrought much in her eyes. It had wrought more than she dreamed of. Her foot was near the ladder now, though she could not yet see the lowest rung.

EIGHT BISHOPS ARE NOW CHOSEN

EPISCOPAL ELECTION OF THE METHODISTS FINISHED.

CONSECRATION IS SUNDAY

Illinois, Iowa and Indiana Represented in the List—Discord in the Presbyterian General Assembly.

Baltimore, Md., May 27.—The Episcopal election of the Methodist Episcopal conference of 1908 is now a matter of history, and when announcement was made late Tuesday of the selection of the eighth and last bishop, very many of the delegates heaved
sighs of relief.

The new bishops in the order of their election are as follows: Rev.
Dr. W. F. Anderson of New York,
secretary of the board of education,
freedman's aid and Sunday schools;
Rev. Dr. J. L. Neulien, professor in Nash Theological seminary, Berea, O.; Rev. Dr. W. A. Quayle, pastor of St. James church, Chicago; Rev. Dr.
Charles W. Smith, editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate; Rev. Dr.
Wilson B. Lewis, president of Morn-ingdale college, Sioux City, Ia.; Rev.
Dr. Edwin H. Hughes, president of De-Paul university, Greenacres, Ind.; Rev. Dr. Robert McIntyre, pastor of the First church, Los Angeles, Cal.,
and Rev. Dr. Frank M. Bristol, pastor of the Metropolitan church, Washington, D. C.

The bishops-elect will be consecrated at a special service which will be on Sunday afternoon at the Lyric.

Discord Among Presbyterians.

Kansas City, Mo., May 27.—Discord entered into the proceedings of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America Tuesday for the first time during the present assembly, while the report of the committee on administrative agencies was under consideration. It was apparent during the heated discussion of the report that there is in the general assembly a strong sentiment in favor of reorganizing the administrative agencies of the church by changing the personnel of this important committee, although a motion to that effect was defeated. After Dr. J. D. Moffatt of Washington, Pa., finished reading the recommendations of the committee and those recommendations were submitted to the assembly for action, Dr.
Helen V. Hunter of Buffalo took exceptions to the tenor of one section, which he said gave too much power to the 21 men composing the committee on administrative agencies, adding the assertion that there "is a growing belief in this assembly that too much power is being centered in the hands of a few men."

Dr. Merrill's Amendment Lost.
Several speakers followed with speeches of a conciliatory nature and when Vice-Moderator James put the recommendations of the committee to a vote they were adopted and it was believed a tense situation had been succeeded by the harmony which had heretofore marked all the deliberations of the assembly, but it soon developed that the storm had not yet spent its force.

Dr. William D. Merrill of Chicago offered an amendment to the effect that the present committee on administrative agencies be discharged and that a new committee of 21 members be appointed, to include all the members of the present committee who are not members of any of the church
boards and that all the business pending before the committee be reported on by the new committee at the assembly next year. After lively debate
the amendment was lost.

SPEAKER OF THE NEXT HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Robert L. Henry of Texas at the Upper Left, Congressman Champ Clark of Missouri at Upper Right and Speaker Cannon at His Desk at the Lower Right.

By Hendrick.

Washington, D. C.—The unusual legislative conditions which have developed in the sixtieth congress have given Washington democrats some basis for the hope of controlling the next house of representatives. So firm is this hope imbedded in democratic congressional minds that you can hear frequent discussion of candidates to succeed Speaker Cannon. Republican congressmen themselves have been slightly alarmed over the possibility of campaign thunder which the obstructive tactics of Speaker Cannon during the present session may have furnished the minority party. The republican majority is sufficiently safe at the present moment, however, to inspire perfect republican confidence that the house will remain republican during the next session. This would mean, undoubtedly, the re-election of Speaker Cannon, provided of course,
he is returned from his Danville, Ill., district. Two possibilities of republican re-election of power, therefore, is of less repulsive interest than the possibility of democratic resumption of power and the speakership probabilities which hang upon the result thereof.

The house of representatives has not been democratic since the fifty-second congress, in 1891, at which time C. F.
Crisp of Georgia was elected speaker,
he being the last democrat to hold that position. Speaker Crisp was in power four years, from 1891 to 1895.
From 1891 to 1895 there were 226
democrats in the house but 88 republicans. From 1895 to 1897 there were 226 democrats to 126 republicans.
From the fifty-third to the fifty-fourth congress, however, there was a remarkable change in political complexions. Where in 1895 there were 226 democrats in the house, the session following there were but 104, and where originally but 126 republicans had sat, 216 republicans came into the majority. From the fifty-fourth congress down to the present sixtieth congress the republicans have held undisputed sway. The nearest the two parties have ever come to a change in policy was in the fifty-sixth congress, when there were 185 republicans and 161 democrats. The present session shows on roll call 222 republicans and 161 democrats. Therefore, if the democrats are to regain the control of the lower house, which they hope and anticipate, they must overcome a prevailing majority of 58 votes. This does not mean, however, they must unseat 58 republicans in order to gain a majority. One hundred and ninety-four votes is a bare majority. Since there are now 161 democrats in the house it is only necessary to unseat 30 republican congressmen in order to accomplish the change. At the same time it will be necessary that the entire present democratic strength of 161 congressmen be unanimously returned. A casual observer would say that the mathematical changes are all against a change in the congressional majority. This would seem particularly true if the complexion of the senate is any criterion. There are 61 republicans in the senate to but 29 democrats.

In case the next house is democratic, which Congressman Champ Clark of Missouri, and many other democrats believe is entirely possible, the Missourian will probably have behind him, as a candidate for the speakership,
a large enough number of representatives to insure his selection. It has been announced that the Alabama, Louisiana and Virginia delegations have all declared for Mr. Clark. Kentucky is known to be for him and it is believed that many northern democrats will rally to his support. If the elections next fall indicate a democratic majority in the house, the only opponent who has so far appeared Congressman Henry of Texas, who has the support of the delegation from his home state. As Mr. Clark is a close friend of Bryan's however, and as a democratic house will certainly mean a democratic president, it is held his selection is almost inevitable
if democratic success at the polls is a possibility. Congressman Clark is a life-long democrat and is serving his seventh term in the lower house, Congressman Henry is serving his sixth term in the house and at the beginning of the fifty-ninth congress was elected chairman of the democratic caucus by a unanimous vote.

UNITED STATES SENATOR THOMAS H. CARTER OF MONTANA.

Washington.—New evidence tending to establish the disputed identity of the original author of the constitution of the United States, or the material from which the original draft of the constitution was made, has been presented. The sponsor for the latest exhibit is Senator Thomas H.
Carter of Montana. The evidence is in the form of a memorial by Hon.
Dennis Taylor, a well known jurist and statesman, and embodies the results of his researches into the most question of the authorship of the constitution. Senator Carter declared to the senate that the evidence presented refers to an historical document of the greatest importance in connection with the constitutional history of the United States. He asked not only that the document be referred to the proper committee for consideration, but that the committee also pass upon the question of erecting in Washington a suitable memorial to the man whom Senator Carter's witness believes to have first outlined the subject matter of the constitution.

This man's name was Pelatiah Webster, and he was a merchant in Philadelphia before and during the Revolution. In a pamphlet which, according to Mr. Taylor's discovery, was printed four years before the constitutional convention met, in 1787 Webster outlined a plan for an American constitution, which is in effect the plan now embodied in the charter of the United States. He divided the government into the executive legislative and judicial branches, and outlined the province of each.

Perhaps the strangest thing about the discovery is that he suggested a department of commerce, that branch of human activity naturally appealing to him strongly, since he was engaged in it. The suggestion in this instance was not adopted by the convention of 1787, and it remained for the department the need of which he foresaw to be established more than 100 years

after he wrote his pamphlet.

Mr. Taylor contends that the fact that three men, Hamilton, Madison and Pinckney—the latter the famous Marylander, William Pinckney—each presented to the convention a draft of a constitution, all three bearing striking resemblance to each other is one proof that the three had drawn their ideas from Pelatiah Webster's pamphlet, with such variations as their own opinions suggested to them.

Webster made known his plan in 1783, so that there were four years before the constitutional convention in which the members of that immortal body might have been expected to have become familiar with a paper bearing so closely upon what all the thinking men of the period were revolving in their minds.

Senator Knox, who is a member of the judiciary committee has a theory that Benjamin Franklin was the originator of the constitution. Mr. Taylor's memorial takes this question up and deduces from his researches arguments which would seem to dispose of the Franklin idea almost conclusively.
